CRATE FEEDING OF POULTRY

(Experimental Farms Note)

Wide versus Narrow Rations.

The use of crates for the finishing of poultry for the market has been general for years and yet this year, with the high cost of feed, much of it stock is being killed in a very thin condition. Numerous tests have shown that feed in a crate or coner for 15 days before killing produces a high quality and an economic flesh and even this year. This practice of finishing will pay. At the same time there are ration that will produce flesh more cheaply than others and for feeding this year it is more important than ever to make the most out of the feed used. Therefore a further test made by the Experimental Farm will be of interest. For flesh the ration should be high in fat forming material and because of the tendency on the part of some to use for crate feeding a ration high protein, a trial was suggested between narrow rations tried in protein and wide rations (rich in fat).

The object of the experiment therefore, was to determine the relative value of a series of rations ranging from an extremely "wide" nutritive ratio to one correspondingly "narrow." For this experiment sixty various cockerels were selected and placed in five crates. They were fed rations ranging in nutritive ratio 1:1 to 1:3.2.

The rations fed and their nutritive ratio were as follows:

No. 1. 6 parts milk, 1 part ground oats, 1 part corn meal, 1 part buckwheat 1-3 part tallow; Ratio 1:5.6.

No. 2. 6 parts milk, 1 part ground oats, 1 part corn meal, 1 part buckwheat meal; Ratio 1:5.09.

No. 3. 4 parts milk, 1 part F. flour, 1 part bran; Ratio 1:3.2.

No. 4. 4 parts milk, 1 part ground oats, 1 part shorts; Ratio 1:4.1.

No. 5. 6 parts milk, 1 part ground oats, 1 part corn meal; Ratio 1:5.09.

An attempt was made to increase the tallow to one half part and wide the ration to 1:7.1 but this resulted in an unpalatable and heavier feed than the birds could evidently assimilate. The amount fed was doubtless the limit of pure fat material that could be supplied in a ration and give any likelihood of beneficial results.

Without skimmed milk, it would not be difficult to widen the ration by the addition of feed rich in carbohydrates but such a ration would lead to trouble as the lack of animal matter always induces feather pulling and like vices.

A small quantity of "Beet Pulp" was fed to the birds in crate No. 5 to decide the worth of a substitute for green feed. The result, however, was not encouraging. It was apparently unpalatable and the birds consumed so little that no advantage could be shown for the feeding.

At the conclusion of the 21 days all the birds were in fair condition and would have easily been made to do better gains in weight by continuing the feed. But three weeks was considered to be as long a period as is profitable and, therefore, this was the time decided upon.

In giving the results for the different rations it should be borne in mind that the duration of the experiment was twenty-one days and that on the market the birds before the feeding were worth 12¢ per lb. and after being finished they brought 25¢ per lb. The costs are worked out at price of grain at the time but the number of pounds of feed required to produce one pound of gain are in each case given so the cost at present local prices may be worked out.

Ration No. 1.—Gained 23 lbs., consumed 70 lbs. feed; required 3.4 lbs. feed to 1 lb. gain. The cost of each pound of gain was 12.5¢. The net profit for the 12 birds was $5.45.

Ration No. 2. Gained 22 lbs., consumed 80 lbs. feed, 2.5 lbs. feed to 1 lb. gain, at a cost of 6.2¢; net profit was $9.36.

Ration No. 3. Gained 16 lbs., consumed 67 lbs. No. of pounds fed for one pound gain 4.2 at a cost of 9.4¢; net profit $5.90.

Ration No. 4. Gained 19.5 lbs., 72 lbs. eaten; 3.7 lbs. feed to 1 lb. gain, cost per pound gain 8.7¢; net profit $6.74.

Ration No. 5. Gained 26.5 lbs., 80 lbs. feed consumed; 3 lbs. feed to 1 lb. gain; cost per pound gain, 6.7¢; net gain on crate $8.32.

Conclusions.

1. Wide rations without tallow were most profitable; the narrow most expensive. It did not pay to add tallow at 13 cents per pound to the ration.

2. The extra finish usually looked for on tallow fed birds was not apparent on crate No. 1 when dressed.

3. At the prices ruling during the experiment, such feeds as bran and flour are not satisfactory if fed alone. Though often recommended for crate feeding.

4. Apparently the wider the nutritive ratio of the grains in the mixture the better. There seems no likelihood of setting it too wide if milk is used.

5. Should milk not be used with a wide ration there is a probability that feather plucking and other vices might become prevalent.

The advisability of "finishing" poultry before marketing is apparent and where skimmed milk is available it can be put to better use than to fatten what fowl there are available before killing, as it will be seen from the above table that almost any ration will improve the bird in the fattening crate, but the wide ration is preferable, if the necessary ingredients are obtainable.

The usual methods and crates were adopted as described in Dominion Experimental Farms Bulletin No. 88.

SAVE YOUR FARM MACHINERY—MAY BE A SCARCITY.

Use of Metals in War Will Have Effect on Machinery Production.

Put Yours Under Cover.

Now is the time to build an impregnable house on your farm if you do not already have one. The price of everything is up. The building will cost approximately twice as much as it would have cost one year ago. Nevertheless a shed just now, if you cannot afford a structure worthy of the name house, will bring in greater returns than it could have at any time in the past decade.

This is true because the price of machinery is also high. It is probably higher in proportion than lumber. Furthermore, so much iron and steel is going into the manufacture of munitions at the present time, and more will go in the near future, that there is every likelihood that there will be an implement shortage. We might not miss it far to say there is a shortage now. In one particular line, the tractor, there has certainly not been an over-production.

It is impossible to foretell what the future has in store, but it is a wise man who prepares.—E. R. Gross, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colorado.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Those desirous of hiring the Council Chamber for public meeting, are hereby notified that application must be made at the Municipal Office or to the Chairman of Property Commission, Mr. H. Hillier.

Railways Co-operate For National Defence

Co-operation made manifest that during the war, the country's needs may best be served. Much can be done to achieve these results through closer co-operation between the public and the railways.

Very shortly after Great Britain became involved in the war, the British Government sent for the General Managers of all the railways and made arrangements by which the railways would be guaranteed the same dividends and a proper depreciation for the period of the war as they were before, and advised the General Managers to form a council amongst themselves to conduct the railways as one; in other words, to eliminate competition and devote the railways to essential transportation solely.

When the United States came into the war, the railways met and arranged amongst themselves to form a committee to operate the railways as one, so as to get the full value of their transportation facilities and eliminate competition. The Canadian Government, having on several occasions expressed a wish that there should be closer co-operation between the railways of Canada and an Executive Committee was formed, consisting of the presidents of the following roads: Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk, Canadian Northern, Sir Wm. Mackenzie, American Lines in Canada, Alfred Smith.

By their direction, a subsequent meeting was held in Montreal, on 27th October, at which the private and government roads operating in Canada were represented, and an Administrative Committee was formed, consisting of:

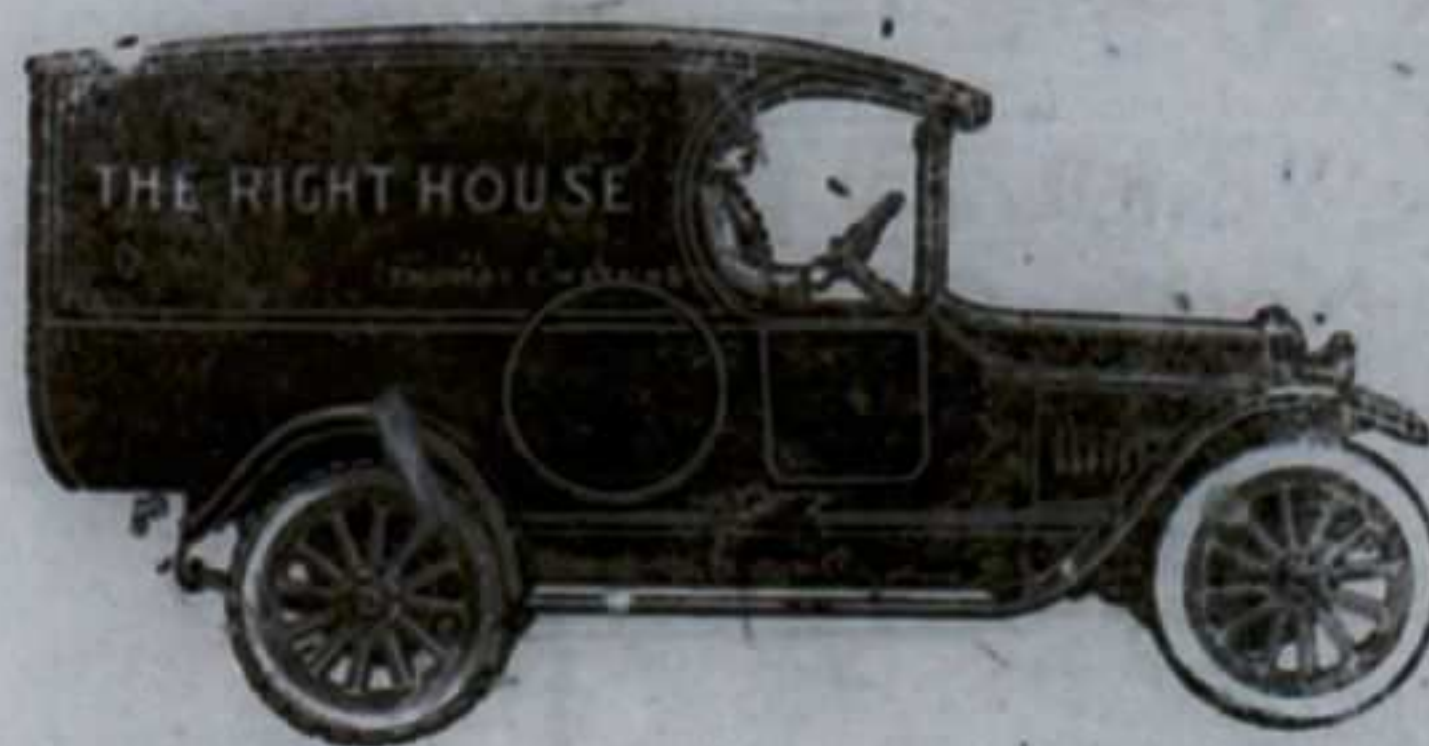

U. E. Gillen, Grand Trunk, Chairman.
C. A. Hayes, Canadian Government Railways.
D. B. Hanna, Canadian Northern.
E. D. Brunner, Michigan Central.
P. P. Backus, Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo.
J. H. Walsh, Quebec Central.
Sir George Bury, Canadian Pacific.

A resolution has been adopted by all the railways in Canada that, realizing the national need of co-ordinating all industrial activities toward the prosecution of the war and thereby rendering the most efficient service to the nation, they hereby agree to establish for the period of the war an organization to be known as the Canadian Association for National Defence, which shall have for its object to formulate in detail, and to carry out, a policy of co-operation between the railways and the other industries of the country, when it is pronounced by the national authorities.

The Canadian Association for National Defence has been organized and an office is being established in Ottawa.

This is an unusual season in woollens. Woollens have been and are still going up at a great rate. It is a case of the merchant who bought the earliest being able to give the best values. We claim we are in this fortunate position. And by purchasing from us you'll positively save money. We bought and bought again, and our own factory is now turning out the goods, in the cheapest suits and overcoats at rock bottom prices. All we ask is that you give us an opportunity of showing you our goods. We feel make suits and overcoats to order. We try on every coat and guarantee
